coffee is probably the most popular drink in the world. Coffee has man ,positive properties * that are good for your health. Drinking coffee can help reduce the chances of some cancers, stomach and neurological diseases, type 2 diabetes, and even heart disease. Coffee has had a long and interesting history on its road to becoming the much-loved drink that it is today. The coffee bush was first discovered in Africa in the 9th century. The coffee beans which can be made into a drink. The recipe for this drink was passed from Africa to the Middle East, to Europe, and then to the Americas. Even though the drink we know as coffee is well known all around the world, most countries have their own special way of making it. 'Cowboy coffee' is made in Finland and Norway by mixing coffee and boiling water together in a kettle and pouring out the liquid into a cup without the grounds. Turkish coffee and boiling water together in a kettle and pouring out the liquid into a cup without the grounds. Turkish coffee is made by mixing very finely ground coffee and sugar in a small pot with a long handle called an ibrik. The ibrik is held over a fire and then removed when the coffee comes to the boil. The mixture is poured into a small ceramic cup and drunk slowly, Ieaving the grounds at the bottom. Italians typically drink it and leave. Many people in the U.S. have an electric coffeemaker which uses a filter to separate the water from the coffee. Hot water drips through the grounds and comes out as the drink they know and love. There is even a way to make coffee using a roasted coconut and the milk inside it! Whichever way you prefer your daily cup of coffee, there's no doubt about it, coffee is something the

has created many famous comics over the years, and is responsible for some of the most popular superheroes that we know today. Some of Lee's more well-known comics aiE Spider-Man, the Fantastic Four, the X-Men, Iron Man, the Hulk, Daredevil, the Avengers and Captain America. Lee started working at Timely Comics, which he turned into his own company, Marvel Comics, and later Marvel Entertainment. He was just 19 when he became an assistant editor and started writing manuals, training films, slogans, and even drawing cartoons. In the 1950s, Lee's main comic book competitor, DC Comics, renewed the interest in comics, which prompted Lee to create more characters of his own. Lee created heroes that were not perfect and had human characteristics like vanity and greed. In this first wave ofnew characters, Lee introduced the world to the Fantastic Four, a group that often argued with one another, the Hulk, a man whose temper was uncontrollable, Iron Man, times greedy and selfish, and finally, Spider-Man, a a businessman who was at young man who was at young man who wanted to help make the world a better place, despite his own limitations. The change from the idealistic superhero to the more realistic hero helped the average reader identify with the characters more. Throughout his career, many of his comics have been developed into films, and he also started his own company, Stan Lee Entertainment. He has also appeared as a character in many comic books, made appearances in films and TV shows and written an autobiography. In 2007, Lee received perhaps the highest honour a comic fan

READING Read the following statements and decide which one applies to each person. Write S for Shirley When I got my first job, there weren't many choices available for women. At the time, girls were expected to stay at home and help raise the children and take care of the house. So the only job that was available for me then was as a waitress at a local restaurant. My parents knew the owner, so he agreed to let me work there a couple nights a week. I started working there when I was 16. My parents thought I was too young, but I was really excited to get out of the house and make my own money. It was a good job, and I had a really nice boss. Plus, it was fun, because all my friends from high school would come in the evenings and I was able to hang out with people I knew while I worked. It was the perfect job! Daniel I spent a lot of time in my dadt dental office as a child. Even when I was very young, I understood how things worked there and I helped out whenever I could. So, everyone knew that someday I would follow in my dadt practice as his partner until he retired a few years later. I learnt a lot from my dad and from watching him in surgery. I learnt how to love my job and be really good at it. I'm glad I didn't have to go to a bunch of interviews. Now, my son helps out at the office and it seems he has already decided on his future career. What can I say? Dentistry runs in our blood. Pam My first job in the 'real world,' was really hard to get. I don't know what the problem was; I mean I had my Master's degree and all the necessary qualifications and I was hard working. Still, no one wanted to hire me. Maybe it's because I had so little real-world experience. I went to at least three job interviews every week for more than six months. It was a lot of driving around for nothing and it was very tiring. Not having a job for that long was really stressful, because I kept eating I could pay rent and bills.
Eventually, I did manage to find a job with a good company. My salary was a lot more than I expected, so I guess in the end, the wait finally away at my savings so paid off! Zack I consider myself pretty lucky when it comes to my life. I'm22,I've just graduated from university, and I already have a great job. I design websites. It's funny, actually. The day I got my degree, I put my CV on Monster.com, and within a few hours, I had a few companies interested in me. I decided on one and they pay my salary right into my bank account and I never with my parents. So itt really time I did something about that. I'm tired of my friends making fun of me for my mum still cooking for me and doing my laundry! But hey, with this great new job, now I can afford to live on my own. even have to leave my house. found on the islands of Borneo and Sumatra in South East Asia. These gentle great apes are very intelligent and, like humans, they have the ability to think and learn. They are the largest tree living mammal, with longer arms than other great apes such as gorillas and chtmpanzees. Orangutans are an endangered species because of illegal hunting, loss of their habitat and being kidnapped from the wild and sold as pets. In fact, it is possible that orangutans living in the wild may become extinct very soon. The loss of their habitat has occurred for various reasons. As the populations of countries in South East Asia have grown, so has the need for land and food. The rainforests have been cut down to on the efforts of various conservation organisations which are working hard to protect them. For example, Camp Leakey is a research station in the Tanjung Puting National Park in Borneo; here orangutans are still threatened; if we holiday I wanted to enjoy the good life and travel in style so I sailed around the Red Sea in a luxury yacht. I left behind sub-zero winter temperatures in the UK and arrived to clear blue skies and cheerful sunshine. The yacht that was to be my home for the week was named Elizabeth. (r) f]Ar soon as I got aboard, I took off my shoes and enjoyed the pleasure of walking on the cool wooden deck. After I was introduced to some of the other passengers, I was shown around the vessel by two crew members. (2) n On the first night we had a delicious evening meal which consisted of fresh fish and roasted vegetables followed by a rich chocolate cake served with vanilla ice cream. (r) il The following morning we set off on our journey; it was a wonderful feeling just sitting and watching the turquoise water slide by. Later on in the day, I went snorkelling and saw some colourful marine life. When your mobile phone runs out of battery power, all you have to do to get it working again is to charge it up. Imagine if you could do the same thing with your car. Researchers at car companies are developing cars that plug into electric sockets. These vehicles might become the cars of the future. The cars are called plug-in hybrids and they get most of their power from electricity, just like other electrical devices like mobile phones and laptops. This technology would significantly reduce the amount of petrol that people use. For countries that depend on other oil producing countries for their petrol supply this could be a great advantage. Presently, most cars use petrol. Unfortunately burning fossil fuels produce carbon dioxide gas, and when alarge amount of this gas and other greenhouse gases are trapped in the Eartht atmosphere, they cause global warming. Hybrid vehicles have already been developed and are being driven. These cars get their power from both petrol and electricity; they are able to travel longer distances with less petrol. Plug-in hybrids will be even more advanced as they are designed to be powered mainly by electricity and use only a small amount of petrol. Although this technology aPPears to offer a solution to our planet's environmental problems, there are still some challenges in getting it to work efficiently. The biggest problem is creating batteries that can store a large amount of energy to run the cars. Plug-in hybrids require a special battery which is very expensive, making the cost of the car very high. In addition, the electricity used to charge plug-in hybrid cars is produced from burning coal - this produces pollution, too. It might be some time before the cars will become available to the public but if they do, it will be a major breakthrough for transport. 39 t Traveller

The sight of a piece of clothing are the same room. button on the floor used to send Sheila into a terrible panic; her palms would start sweating, her heart would race and she would have difficulty breathing. Sheila's friends and colleagues usually burst out laughing when she knew she had to do something. Sheila took part in a psychology project which aimed at helping people to get over their fears. As part of her treatment, Sheila had to face her fear and stay in a room alone with lots of buttons scattered all over the floor. Before facing her feat she had several sessions with a psychologist and after three weeks she was able to overcome her fear. Now, when Sheila sees a button she just laughs at herself. B. Brian When Brian thinks about fish, he feels sick. If he smells or much worse with a feeling of intense disquest. restaurant and someone is eating fish, he has to leave immediately. One day when Brian saw one of his co-workers eating a tuna sandwich, he became terrified and started feeling very ill. He had to go home and was unable to go back to work for two weeks. Brian sought the help of a counsellor who recommended some relaxation therapy. By talking about his fear and performing some deep breathing and muscular relaxation exercises, Brian is now able to face his worst enemy. Although he still refuses to eat fish, now he can go with his family to the seaside and enjoy an evening eating out. 43 Traveller friltr?]i?ilHltrn C. Sarah A childhood event triggered Saraht fear. One day, when she was eight years old, an enormous cockroach got caught in her hair. Sarah panicked and screamed but it was very difficult for her of of parents to help her remove the insects, in particular, cockroaches. She refused to travel abroad and lived in constant fear finding a cockroach in her home. When Sarah had to give up a job offer, she decided it was time to take control ofher life. She had a combination ofhypnotherapy and psychotherapy, which over a period of six months helped her to come face-to-face with a giant cockroach without running for her life.
